U.S. Patent and Trademark Office PTOL-303 (Rev. 08-06)

Continuation of 11. does NOT place the application in condition for allowance because: Applicants arguments, regarding the prior art rejection, filed 7/8/2008 are not persuasive.

Firstly, the amendment to claim 31 overcomes the 112 2nd paragraph rejection and so that rejection is thus withdrawn.

Secondly, Applicant argues that Carret does not teach "in accordance with the authentication response (which provides positive authentication), disallowing a predetermined type of communication from passing from the subscriber to outside of the access network". Applicant further states Carrett teaches that "the denial of packet communication occurs when there has been no authentication." In reply, it appears that Applicant has misinterpreted the Garrett reference, Paragraphs 25-26 of Garrett disclose how the router 103 operates after the client network access device (i.e. subscriber) has been authenticated and allocated an appropriate IP address that will allow the client to access (i.e. communicate) in one of the service networks (see paragraph 37). The router 130 has a list of the IP addresses allocated to the various clients (i.e. usubscribers) along with which service network each client is allowed to access. If a source IP of a client matches, then that client will be allowed to access one of the service networks and will be disallowed from accessing the other service networks (s). It is therefore seen that Garrett does indeed teach these limitations.

Paragraphs 41 and 43 include further limitations of access (i.e capacity, TOS, etc) within the accessible service network.
